Zeuthen Workshop:
The International Financial and Monetary Architecture
March 7th, 2018

This year's Zeuthen lecturer at the University of Copenhagen is professor Markus Brunnermeier from Princeton University. He will present three lectures on the International Financial and Monetary Architecture on March 5th and 6th, 2018. For further information, please follow this link: Zeuthen Lectures 2018.

In connection with these lectures, the Department of Economics is organizing a workshop, taking place on March 7th, 2018. We hereby invite the submission of papers for presentation at the workshop.

We welcome papers dealing with theoretical and empirical issues relating to the international financial and monetary architecture. More broadly, submissions can be in the fields of International Finance, Monetary Policy, and Financial Institutions.

Submissions by graduate students, post-docs and other young researchers are particularly welcome. For those presenting at the workshop, we offer funding towards travel and accommodation costs.

Please submit papers by email to Charlotte Jespersen (Charlotte.Jespersen@econ.ku.dk) no later than February 8th, 2018. Selection of papers will be made by February 12th.

For further information on the workshop, please contact the organizer:

Peter Norman Sørensen (Peter.Sorensen@econ.ku.dk).
