

Invitation

Opening of Center for Economic Behavior and Inequality

Wednesday 29th of November 2017 at 15:15-17:00. CSS, Øster Farimagsgade 5, building 35

Register at http://www.econ.ku.dk/cebi/registration/ no later than Friday 24th of November.

Program

Third floor 15:15-16:15

Speeches by Troels Østergaard Sørensen (Dean of Social Sciences, UCPH), Liselotte Højgaard (Chairman of the Board of the Danish National Research Foundation) and Claus Thustrup Kreiner (CEBI Director)

Short presentations of research projects

- Impatience, Savings Behavior and Wealth Inequality, CEBI guest Thomas Epper, University of Zürich and University of St. Gallen
- Inheritance and Long-Run Consumption Behavior, Postdoc Jeppe Druedal
- Inequality in Longevity: The Roles of Social Mobility and Behavior, Assistant Prof. Torben Heien Nielsen
- Inequality and Transmission of Education Across Generations, Assistant Prof. Miriam Gensowski

Second floor 16:15-17:00

16:15-17:00: Reception including speech by Christian Schultz (Head of the Department of Economics, UCPH)

About CEBI

CEBI is a new center of excellence funded by the Danish National Research Foundation. Inequality across people in income, wealth and many other outcomes arises from differences in circumstances and differences in behavior. Much economic research on the causes of inequality focuses on circumstances. CEBI focuses on the role of individual behavior in generating unequal outcomes. Understanding the role of behavior is fundamental for obtaining a better understanding of the sources of inequality, how policy affects inequality, and how circumstances and behavior interact to reduce or produce inequality. Read more at

<http://www.econ.ku.dk/cebi/>

