

CENTER FOR ECONOMIC BEHAVIOR & INEQUALITY

Danmarks
Grundforskningsfond
Danish National Research Foundation

Funded by the European Union

PhD Minicourse on Subjective Expectations in Economics

Copenhagen, 9 June 2027

Description

The minicourse aims to provide PhD students with the tools to carry out research in the rapidly growing area of subjective expectations, with an emphasis on closely integrating economic theory, econometric methods, and survey-elicited subjective expectations in empirical microeconomic and macroeconomic work. The course will cover issues in survey elicitation of subjective expectations and their use in economic research across economic sub-fields, using a variety of empirical applications to illustrate how these tools and methods are combined to address important applied questions.

The course consists of one day of lectures, held the day before the Workshop on Subjective Expectations 2027 (10-11 June). The workshop brings together junior and senior researchers from the field to discuss recent advances in economic research using survey-elicited subjective expectations. The minicourse and the workshop are both held in Copenhagen.

There is no registration fee for the course, but attendees are expected to arrange and cover their own travel and hotel accommodation.

Lecturers

- Esteban Aucejo (Arizona State University)
- Adeline Delavande (Nova School of Business and Economics and University of Technology Sydney)
- Søren Leth-Petersen (University of Copenhagen and CEBI)
- Chris Roth (LMU Munich)
- Basit Zafar (University of Michigan)

Organizers

Adeline Delavande (Nova School of Business and Economics and University of Technology Sydney), Basit Zafar (University of Michigan) and Søren Leth-Petersen (University of Copenhagen and CEBI).

How to Apply

To apply, please fill out the following form:

<https://eventsignup.ku.dk/workshoponsubjectiveexpectations/signup>. In the form you enter your details and those of your PhD supervisor, write a short motivation letter (max 300 words), and upload your CV and a short letter of recommendation from your PhD supervisor as PDF files.

Successful applicants will be notified by March 14, 2027.

DEADLINE TO APPLY: FEBRUARY 14, 2027

Sponsored by the Center for Economic Behavior and Inequality (CEBI), University of Copenhagen, a center of excellence funded by the Danish National Research Foundation (DNRF), and by the European Union.