

Nordic Conference in Development Economics - Call for papers

June 17-18, 2013 - Bergen, Norway

On behalf of the Nordic Network in Development Economics, The Chr. Michelsen Institute, The Choice Lab at NHH - Norwegian School of Economics and The Economics Department at the University of Bergen are hosting the next Nordic Conference in Development Economics.

Keynote speakers:

Professor Martin Ravallion, Georgetown University

Professor Emmanuelle Auriol, Toulouse School of Economics

The Nordic Conference in Development Economics is always an excellent opportunity to share ongoing research with a wide range of colleagues from all Nordic countries. Researchers and PhD candidates working in other countries are also invited to the conference. The conference is open for submissions within any sub-field of development economics. PhD students are encouraged to submit papers and to participate in the conference.

Conference participants are expected to finance travel and accommodation by their own means or by support from their home universities. Two lunches and one dinner will be paid for by the conference organizers. There is no conference fee.

Preliminary reservations have been made at the following hotels:
